ARMIES IN TRUCE; CAMP ON PLAINS TONIGHT INVADING REDS WIN TOP OF HILL BLUES BREAK CAMP FOR FIGHT

Clash Of Arms On Reservation Itself

By CHARLES NORTON
(Staff Correspondence by Telephone
to Star-Bulletin).

CENTRAL STATION, CASTNER, Oct. 22, 3 p. m.—Hostilities between the Red and Blue armies have ceased for today, following the battle this morning on the plains, and there will be no resumption, it is expected, until tomorrow, unless some night attack should have been planned, of which nothing, naturally, has been said.

The troops are camped on the plains, resting after somewhat severe work this morning.

The Blue Army came through with flying colors today, not a man falling behind on the stiff march up from its overnight camp.

It was a splendidly fought battle today. The Star-Bulletin correspondent was enabled to see it from the water-tower, where the range for the Blue artillery was secured, and a really thrilling sight it was. Pen nor camera could not do it justice.

(Staff Correspondence by Telephone
to Star-Bulletin)

CENTRAL STATION, Castner, Oct. 22.—The battle of Bellehau Plains was fought today, fought over the brown plains almost within shadow of the hills behind Schofield and largely within sight of the road that runs from Honolulu to Waialua.

For more than two hours the battle waged hot and heavy and when at 11:35 o'clock in the morning two bombs sounded the order for truce. The victory was in doubt. The umpires and commanding officers of both forces gathered to study out the problem and compare notes on the varying tide of conflict during the day, until they have finished none will know whether the eagle of victory is perching this afternoon on the banner of the defending Blues or the standard of the invading Reds.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon the decision had not yet been reached.

The Red leaders, however, feel that they have won the fight because they succeeded in getting their forces across Kaukonahua gulch unopposed, and up to the high ground at Schofield in shape to give the best battle that was in them.

Practically all of the fighting occurred around the central station at Castner, where the new buildings are going up and in the midst of prosaic building material of all kinds. But the battle was spectacular, picturesque and engrossing.

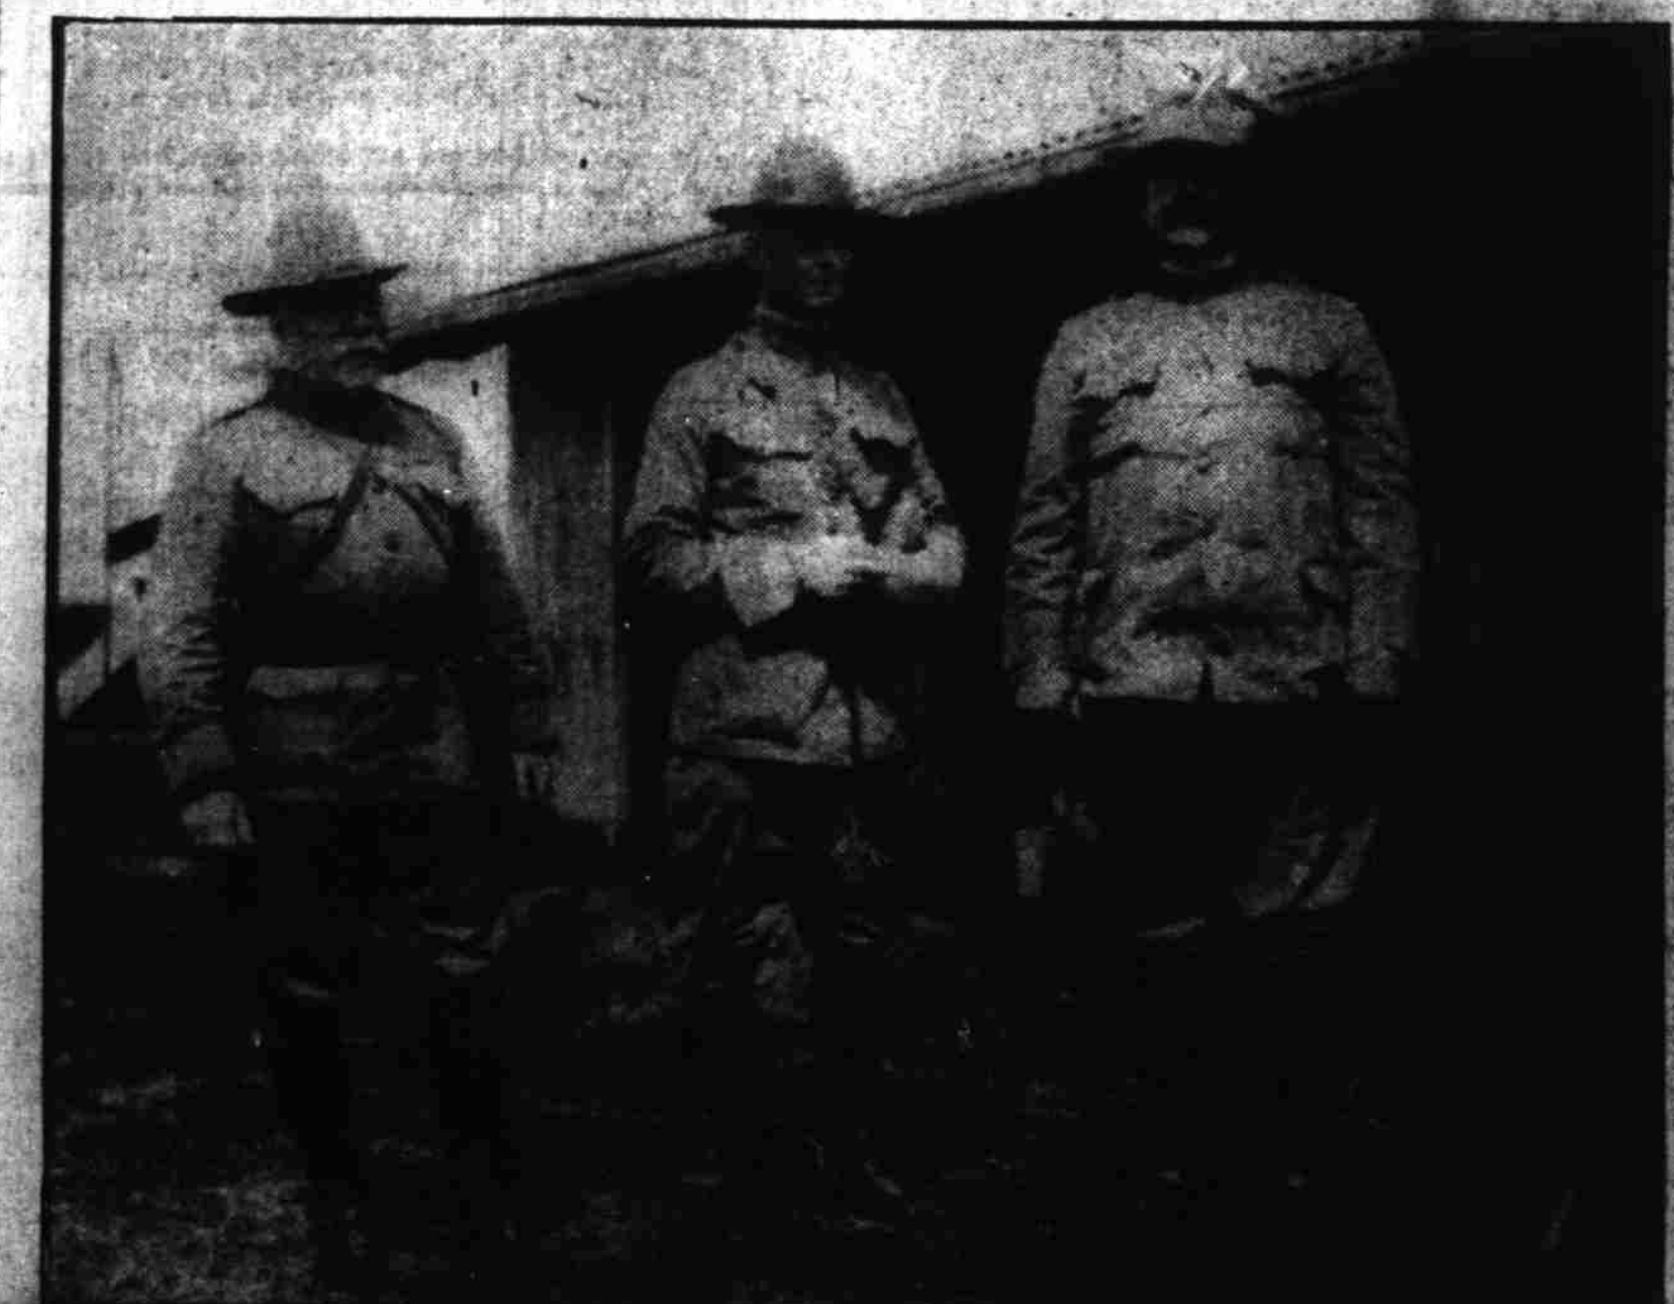

The Blues broke their camp early today and marched in from near Pearl City and the Reds from their landing at Waialua, scaled the hills and crossed the gulches until they got upon the plains of Bellehau. Then came the clash.

It was shortly after 9 o'clock when the opposing armies came together and they fought until half an hour before noon.

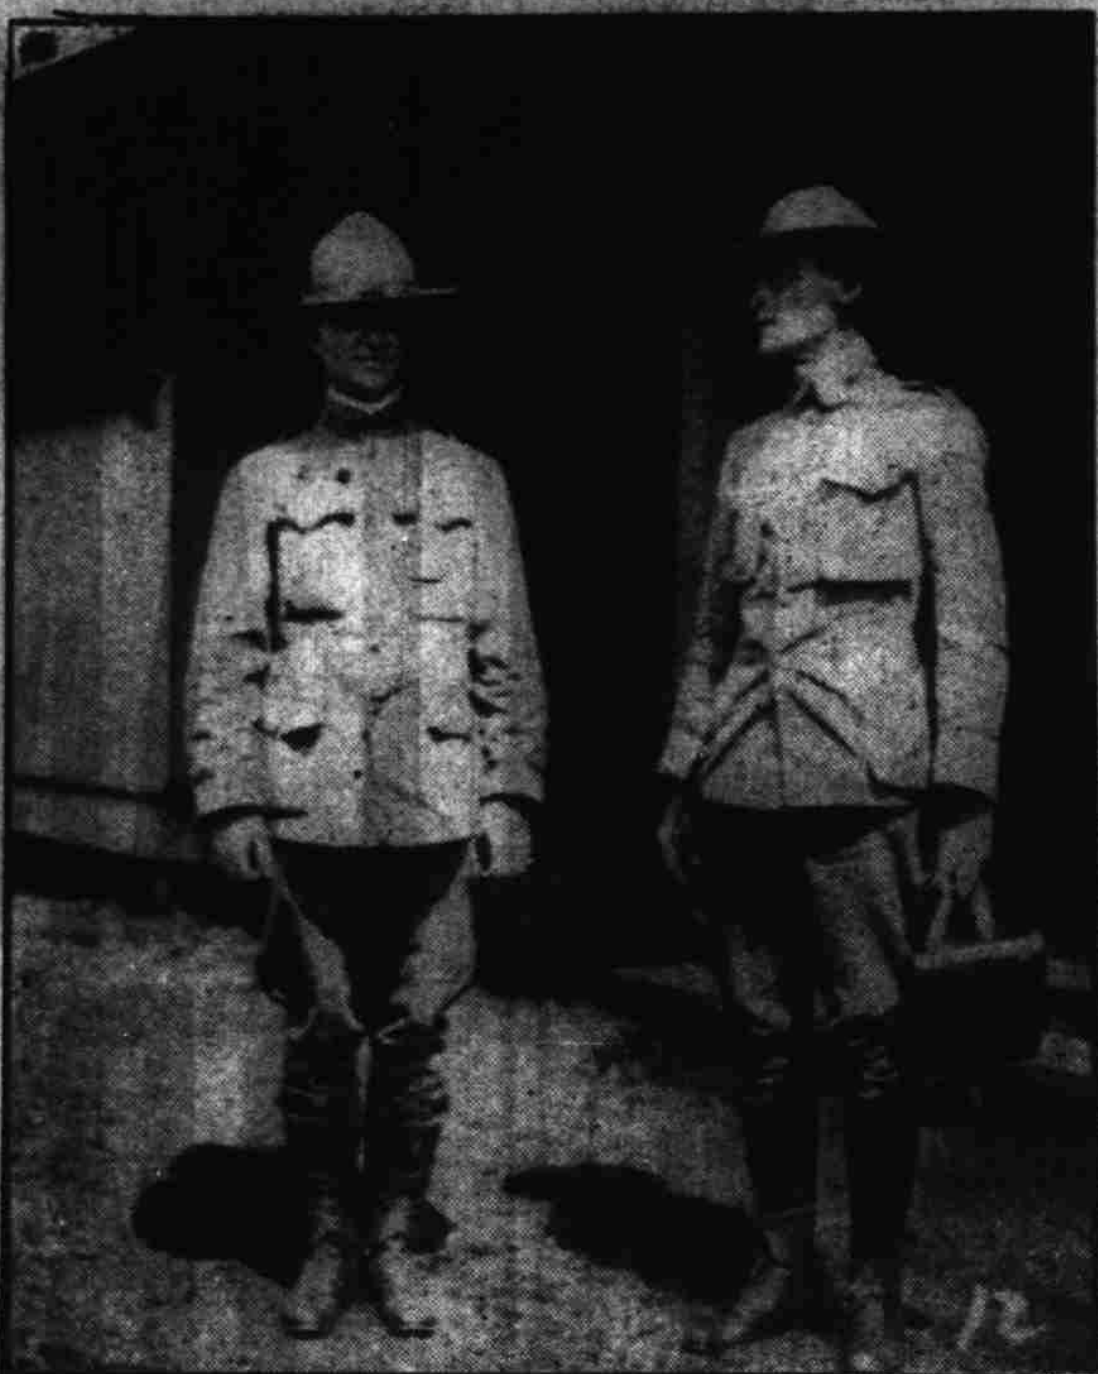

The Blue cavalry, which was sent out to the Boys Industrial School, is still to be heard from. The Reds got across Kaukonahua gulch without trouble, although they had expected that the bridges would be cut down and they would have to go by trails.

The first artillery firing began at 9:10 o'clock with one battery of the Blues well screened behind a knoll to the north of the main road using direct fire over the knoll, and the officers getting the range from a tall water tower.

The Reds' artillery also had a well screened position which allowed their guns to play upon the massed Blue cavalry to the left of the Blue line. There was an exciting engagement between mounted cavalry and infantry in front of the new infantry post.

This afternoon it was officially announced that a battalion of the Blues' Second Infantry had captured two bridges at Waialua, and also given out officially that the marines were successful in driving back the squadron of Blue cavalry which had been sent to harass the Red's advance.

COMING OF MARINES IS BIG SURPRISE TO DATE

(Star-Bulletin Staff Correspondence)
HALEIWA HOTEL, October 22, 9 a. m.—Up to date the biggest surprise of the maneuvers has been the participation of the marines who arrived at Haleiwa from Camp Verry by the tug Navajo last evening about 5:30 o'clock. The ordering of the marines into action brings an entirely new factor into the "war" and one that has to a considerable degree upset calculations based on the estimate of forces.

The Red commander was the only person in the Red army who knew that his troops were to be reinforced by the marines.

The mysterious squadron of cavalry that left Schofield on a secret mission turns out to be Blue cavalry, sent to the vicinity of the Boys' Industrial school at Waialua with the intention, evidently, of making a flank attack on the main Red army as it moved to meet the Blues, presumably around Schofield Barracks.

The object of landing the marines apparently was to delay the cavalry of the Blues so that the mounted men could not attack the Red column.

Meanwhile the Blues were active, as the Red forces have learned. Col. Wilder began by throwing a signal line clear across the island. This was ascertained when a signal station

Armies Given War Problem Blues Defend Pearl Harbor

At 6 o'clock this morning the following official notification from headquarters was received by the Red and Blue armies, setting forth the situation for each and outlining the big maneuver plan. The "situation" actually opened this morning, and announcement of it was followed immediately by activity on the part of the opposing forces.

SPECIAL SITUATION—RED.

A feint at landing near Barber's Point has been made by the Red force.

Under cover of darkness on the night of Oct. 21-22, 1912, the Red force moved to the vicinity of Kawaihapa on the north coast and there began to disembark at 2 a. m. Oct. 22.

At the same hour one company of Marines disembarked near the Haleiwa Hotel and seized the bridge 500 yards to the east of that place. They were later joined by ten (10) Red cavalrymen.

Red spies report that the greater part of the Blue mobile troops were at Pearl City at 8 p. m. Oct. 21, but that one troop of Blue cavalry was seen in the vicinity of the Industrial School at 6 p. m. Oct. 21.

The commander of the Red force receives the following order at 6 a. m. Oct. 22, from the commander of the Red expedition:

No further news of the enemy.

The 1st battalion, 3rd Infantry (imaginary) will protect our base at Kawaihapa during further landing operations. Reinforcements will be sent forward as they become available.

March at once with your command and seize the high ground on the United States military reservation covering the Waialua-Honolulu road.

Your field train will remain here until further orders.

Messages will reach me at Kawaihapa.

By command of Maj. Gen. A. Z. Chief of Staff.

(Note:—The patrols are imaginary until the situation actually opens on the morning of Oct. 22. Subsequently they are such as circumstances may indicate to the respective squadron commanders.)

HALL TOURNAMENT POSTPONED.

Announcement was made this afternoon that owing to the inclement weather, the opening of play for the Hall tennis cup has been postponed from tomorrow until Monday and the time for handing in entries is correspondingly extended.

LINER MANCHURIA BRINGS STORY OF FIRE AND DEATH

Fire and death visited the Pacific Mail liner Manchuria during the stay of the big trans-Pacific steamer at Far Eastern ports.

Ninety-fathom Daniel Friele, veteran master of the vessel and commodore captain of the Pacific Mail fleet, however declares that he had nothing to fear of a hoodoo that is alleged to have pursued the Manchuria across the thousands of miles of watery waste since his departure from San Francisco some months ago.

The Manchuria with the commodore flag of the genial skipper gallily flying from the masthead, came along side Alaska wharf before nine o'clock this morning. The big liner met with a succession of head winds almost immediately after leaving Yokohama, this brand of weather continuing until the liner came within sight of the Hawaiian Islands.

It was at Manila that Edward G. Morse, fourth officer in the vessel met his tragic death. To all accounts Morse was drowned. It is the general opinion that Morse tripped over a rope and fell overboard striking the water in such a way as to render him unconscious. The Manchuria had been working her forward hatches and the railing was down between No. 2 and 5 hatches and it is supposed that he fell overboard there for when his body finally floated it came up right opposite No. 3 hatch.

When the body was discovered just as it rose to the surface, it was badly swollen from being in the water so long. There was a blue spot on the side of the head which has not been accounted for as there were no cascos alongside that he could have struck in falling.

It is claimed that Morse had been out the evening previous with two fellow officers in an automobile. They visited several popular places about Manila after which the deceased is said to have returned to his ship along about twelve o'clock at night, according to statements from the watchman. An inspection of his cabin at the time of the tragedy revealed his clothes neatly folded in his locker.

The deceased officer was given a fitting burial at Manila the funeral services being largely attended and the remains interred at Del Norte, the most beautiful cemetery in the city of Manila.

The Manchuria had proceeded from Manila to Hongkong when on

PLANS FOR HILO STREET R. R.

Arrangements are practically completed for obtaining the governor's approval of the $5000 bond to the county of Hawaii, which guarantees the completion of the first section of the Hilo street railway," said L. S. Conness, the leading promoter of that enterprise, this afternoon. "I expect very soon we will incorporate, when the preliminary survey will be started. The franchise allows three years before completion of the work, but there is absolutely no idea of taking that much time."

Mr. Conness stated, in answer to a question, that Front street would be the main thoroughfare covered in the first section. "The Hilo Railroad Company took a census the other day of the traffic on Front street," added Mr. Conness, "and it made them open their eyes. There is not a point in Honolulu, within half a mile of Front and King streets, which has one-half the traffic of Front street. Mr. Bishop, the loan fund engineer, just appointed superintendent of public works, has expressed the opinion that a permanent pavement is necessary on that street to bear the stress of traffic, as it is entirely too heavy for macadam to withstand."
